Governor To Appear Before Joint Session of Assembly This Morning, With Topic in Doubt.

DEFICIT SHOWN AT FIRST OF YEAR

Action on Liquor Revenue Legislation in House Seen Tomorrow.

By The Associated Press. Governor Rivers, confronted by complex job of budget-making in order to maintain his public needs of the state in an address to the general assembly today. After nine weeks of a special legislative session which he called to strengthen the state's financial structure, only a few measures that can be counted on for additional revenue have become law. By all estimates, they fall considerably short of meeting the needs outlined in the extra session call.

The Governor is expected to appear before a joint session of the assembly at 11:30 o'clock. In view of the uncertainty over liquor legislation, it was considered prob-lematical whether he would make specific recommendations on revenue-raising proposals. far-reaching in its ultimate benefits to the state, it is a wonder that something of the kind has not been proposed years ago. In its final analysis the plan is one seeking to induce the farmers of Georgia to live at home, to conserve their soil, to diversify their crops and to improve their homes. Since the days of Henry Grady, The Constitution has been pointing out the folly of sending millions of dollars out of the state each year to pay for food products that can easily

In connection with this contest, it would be a fine gesture on the part of the local Chamber of Commerce and the civic clubs to offer additional cash prizes to the farmers of Colquitt county who may enter for the prizes of The Constitution. This would create greater local interest and guarantee prizes to the farmers of Colquitt who make the best records in 1938.

The Times has long urged the farmers to adopt the live at home program. During more than 52 years of editorial work we have written hundreds articles urging farmers to adopt and follow this program; but because of its greater ability, The Constitution has gone further, adopting a more practical, more direct, and more personal appeal to the individual farmer. A plan that is bound to pro-duce immediate and far-reach-

Most heartily do we commend The Constitution's contest offer to the 5,000 farmers of Carroll, hoping that at least 1,000 of them will actively enter the contest. AMERICAN KILLED IN PHILIPPINE CRASH MANILA, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Lieutenant James B. Ord was injured fatally today when a Philippine army training plane crashed into a tree at Baguio.

Colonel Ord was one of the best known members of the United States military mission which has been guiding the progress of the young Philippine army.

"Colonel Ord's death is one of those shocking tragedies which the country so frequently exper-iences in its search for security," said General Douglas MacArthur, Army officers who investigated the crash said they believed it was caused by misjudgment of speed and altitude. The Filipino pilot

CONFEREES AGREE TO POSTPONE LIMIT ON FARM SUBSIDY

Lawmakers Work Overtime on Bill, Delay $10,000 Top To Give Warning.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(P)—Congressional conferees reported today they had agreed to postpone until 1939 a $10,000 limitation on federal benefit payments under the new farm program.

They previously had agreed to limit to $10,000 the amount any corporation could receive for compliance with the program, and to permit individuals or partnerships farming in several states to receive no more than that amount for no more than that amount for oliance in each state.

The conferees worked overtime in a Sunday session in an effort to complete adjustment of differ-ences between the "ever-normal granary" bills passed by the house

They said they decided to delay the limitation because many large landowners and corporations had made leases and agreements for 1938 while expecting federal farm programs to continue as at present.
"Delaying the limit to 1939 will give them plenty of notice," said Senator Hatch, Democrat, New

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 .- (A)-Mystery surrounded the death today of Mrs. Rita White Schwartz, identified by police as the wife of a New York meat dealer, whose body was found in the garage of her Long Beach, Long Island,

Grace Wilson, a maid, found the body, severely bruised, in vacant chauffeur's quarters in the garage. Gas was flowing from a heater. Detective Thomas Moore, of Long Beach police, said the maid told him the woman's husband, identified as Michael Schwartz, was away late today when the body was found. The body was removed to Mead-owbrook hospital, Hempstead, for an autopsy.

"Now you can collect your $90 I hope you will be happy," read a note police said they found in Mrs. Schwartz's pocketbook. It was signed, "Ree."

Mrs. Schwartz, about 50, had lived for about 16 years at Long Beach, a community on a narrow island just off the south shore of

THE PASSING OF A TABOO

One by one the ancient taboos, those irrational "must not mention" rules of a prudish society which have done more to handican science in its warfare against the evils that beset mankind than any other factor, are being lifted. One of the most recent to go is the foolish hesitancy to admit the existence of the disease called syphilis.

The American Institute of Public Opinion has conducted a nation-wide poll on whether physicians should be required to give a blood test for syphilis to all expectant mothers. The result was 88 per cent answered "Yes." Among the women questioned, 90 per cent replied in the affirmative. The masculine percentage was 87 in favor of the tests.

In the New York state legislature a bill requiring expectant mothers to take this test will, according to the predictions of its sponsors, be passed within a month. Efforts to secure such a statute in every state will be made.

In Georgia, Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the State Health Department, reports that in 1937 the number of persons taking this test increased 47.1 per cent over 1936, while the increase in persons found infected was 3.2 per cent. Of all those tested in 1937, 18.4 per cent were found to be infected.

Next Wednesday will be National Hygiene Day, devoted to the drive to stamp out this disease. Locally the day will be featured at an all-day session of the Georgia Social Hygiene Council at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Physicians and specialists brand syphilis as one of the most widespread diseases in America. The vast majority of those infected have become so through no moral delinquency of their own. The germ of the disease may be picked up in a hundred ways. It strikes the innocent and the guilty alike.

No disease brings more varied results. It not only impairs the physical strength of its victims, but destroys their sanity as well, and in its final development often brings the most horrible of deaths.

Other countries, notably the Scandinavian nations, have succeeded in eliminating syphilis among their populations. The United States can do likewise. Such a result can only come, however, by universal tests for syphilitic infection and by making treatment for cure available to all. Fortunately it is a disease for which there is a known, specific cure. Except in advanced cases, every infected individual can be restored to full enjoyment of health.

The first step in this important campaign has been accomplished. That is the lifting of the taboo of false modesty which, only a few years ago, made mention of the name of the disease impossible in public print or in polite

And the increase in voluntary tests, as shown in Georgia, links with the proposal to require such tests by law, as in New York.

The day is in sight when syphilis will join smallpox, the black plague and other former scourges of mankind as one of the ancient evils that has been conquered by science.

ALCHEMY

Another day brings the dreaded dawn of a pessimist's fears. The hot water faucet runs cold, the food is burnt, the coffee weak and almost tasteless.

The morning newspaper headlines shriek of war and preparations for war, suicides, deaths in week-end traffic accidents, business failures and predictions of depressing weather. The postman's bell means only reminders of overdue accounts.

A mist grays the horizon. A chilling breeze comes through the open window. Thoughts of monotonous tasks to be done wrinkle the brow into a scowl. Just another day.

That noise! The shrill, tuneless whistle of the kid next door as he scampers about the lawn with an awkward, barking pup. What kind of parents are they who let a boy and a dog run around disturbing people?

Oh, well; work must be done. If the weather only would begins to clear and the sun seems to be printing fantastic patterns on carpets of green under the trees. A balmy zephyr bellies the window draperies, and smells of the earth sail into the room.

The boy has begun to sing. Not half bad. Kind of a funny little yelp that terrier has. The air is getting warmer-sun's higher and a little yellower. There's a twitter somewhereover in that little magnolia. Looks like it might be a robin, although . . .

Don't worry, it's just the alchemy of the first midwinter signs of coming spring!

THE PUBLISHERS REGRETFULLY REJECT-

The International Congress of Book Publishers is to meet in Germany next June. At Leipzig, to be exact. And a group of the most important American book publishers has notified the congress that it must, regretfully, refuse the invitation to attend.

These American publishers have, by this action, avoided a disagreeable duty. For, once in attendance on that congress they would, inevitably, have had either to give offense to their German hosts or conceal their fundamental opinions regarding the freedom of the Germany is the country where wholesale book burning has been practiced under the regime of Adolph Hitler. Innumerable books listed among the greatest contributions of all time to classic literature have been destroyed and banned from the homes and libraries of Naziland.

And it is known that German publishers who will attend the Leipzig conference will offer a resolution proposing a ban upon all books which "libel the heads of states." This is obviously an attempt to gag all critics of dictatorships or of their false ideals. The determination of what constitutes libel against the "head of a state" would be, perforce, left to each nationality. No American publisher could so debase the American ideals of free speech and free press as to subscribe to such a theory, emanating from such a country as the Germany of today.

It is utterly impossible for publishers of countries so dissimilar in point of view as the United States and Germany to agree upon such a proposal as this. American publishers are wise in staying away. They will thus have no part in a gathering which, it is certain, will be used by its German hosts for pro-Nazi propaganda.

A BRITAIN UNAFRAID

David Lloyd George, World War prime minister of Britain, looks back over 50 years of participation in world events and gazes forward to the future before affirming, in a recent interview, that Britain is "not afraid" for

The fate of modern civilization, he states in enlarging upon that simple statement, rests with the three great democratic nations, France, the United States and Britain. These three, he declares, must work together and adds that upon their joint action depends the future. In face of this circumstance he expresses his confidence in that triple force when he says Britain is "not afraid."

Not one of the three should fear. For, confident in the verity of the ideals which animate the peace-loving democracies, there can be no fear that the doctrines of force and ruthless conquest, as typified by the autocratic nations, can ultimately triumph. To believe they would be tres and every faith in justice.

Mussolini, says Lloyd George, is but a bluffer, holding "very poor cards," and he derides the constant alibi of Fascist and Nazi about "saving the world from Communism." The British statesman correctly points out that, between the three isms, there is little to choose and liberty is unknown to any one of Britain, he significantly comments, wants peace, but "we bent our backs to the load in 1914 and 1918. We can and will do the same again should the need arise."

Which should be accepted as a very sincere and very serious warning by those who have mistakenly accepted the British love for peace as a softening of the British will for the right. Those who imagine they may twist the lion's tail with impunity, may learn to their sorrow that the lion still has teeth and claws as well.

The recession has the wisest of them perplexed. A new $10 counterfeit bill may be identified by a worried expression on the face of Alexander Hamilton.

Pisa's famous leaning tower is leaning farther than ever. We have nothing to suggest, save that Il Duce move to the lee side and breathe on it.

THINKING ALOUD (From the Detroit News.)

Wall Street is said to have received the news of President Roosevelt's offhand "death sentence" on holding corporations with shocked amazement. At the same time the stock market showed no sign of perturbation, the traders preferring to pay attention to the proposed federal tax reform and other encouraging news from Washington. This paradox is interesting, in that for the first time business sentiment, as reflected by stock market, at least, conspicuously has refused to take the President seriously. It recogn course, the far-reaching implications of the President's proposal. But these implications or the Presi-dent's proposal. But these implications were sim-ply so far-reaching that it jumped at once to the conclusion that no such proposal could eventuate, or at any rate not soon enough to warrant worrying about it.

In reasoning thus, business sentiment hardly would have counted solely on the current resistance of congress to presidential leadership; the President's continued popular strength would be a factor making that a weak reed to lean upon. The paradoxical reaction to the holding co proposal can be explained, it seems, only by as-suming that business at last is getting on to the President's habit of thinking aloud. He thinks of, and discusses, national problems in boldly theoretical terms, implying remedies that, in literal acceptance, would be terrifying. But in practice, the remedies of necessity take, at worst, a vastly less impractical form. Business has concluded, in other words, that the presidential what worse than his bite.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By. JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

STATES' RIGHTS' 'LION' WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 .- The present moribund condition of the anti-lynching bill is the work of one man, and that man is neither a southerner nor a Democrat. He is Senator William E. Borah, Republican, of Idaho, the old lion of states' rights.

To put it bluntly, Borah shamed the southern senators into their but effective filibuster against the bill. At the end of the special session, the southerners had no filibuster planned, briefly because most of them secretly wanted to see the bill pass. Most of them are conservative, anti-New Deal Democrats, who fear a future struggle with the New Deal for control of the party back home. And they can think of no better weapon for the struggle than Franklin Delano Roosevelt's signature on an anti-lynching bill.

Not so Borah, who was sincerely horrified by what he considered the bill's invasion of states' rights. First, he lobbied hard among the southerners. And then, just before this session began, Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, commander of the southern forces, called meeting of opponents of the measure. He said that he was willing to fight the bill, but would not trouble to do so unless all the southerners got together to help him.

The majority of those present at the meeting were frankly unwilling to bother, saying that they planned to make their records against the bill and let it go at that. Thereupon, Borah rose, gave his southern colleagues something of a tongue-lashing for pusil-

"I don't care what you others do, but I don't believe in this bill and I'm going to fight it as long as I'm able."

That started the ball rolling. The final blow to the bill was Borah's speech on the floor, one of the best which the senate has heard of late, whatever is thought of its arguments. After Borah's speech, the southerners went to work in earnest.

SMALL LOANS FOR GOOD BOYS It's now expected that the new administration scheme for government loans to small industry will be presented for consideration to the forthcoming presidential congres businessmen from the "good 90 per cent." The plan, which has its origin in administration conviction that small business cannot get new money from underwriters or loans from banks, is still very much in the formative stage. But, as it stands now, it is roughly

A new government agency will be created, with authorization to make long-term loans to business, in amounts ranging from $10,000 to $1,250,000. The first capital of the new agency is to come from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but, as the loans are made, debentures will be sold to the public against the col-Thus, private funds will be siphoned off for the use of the small businesses which now have trouble finding investors.

Experts report that the new agency could easily lend $100,000,000. The notions of loans to small industry sprang originally from the mind of Chairman William O. Douglas, of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Studies of the problem, which are said to have revealed a real need for such loans, converted Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board. At present, only Jesse H. Jones, the hard-boiled ruler of the RFC, remains unregenerate. Jones argues that, if a business has sound collateral, it can always obtain money from the banks.

A number of influential New Deal left-wingers have seized on the Douglas-Eccles notion and converted it to their own purposes. They would use the loans as a trust-busting weapon, forcing the borrowers, by means of terms of contract, to observe certain highly competitive practices in their businesses. Thus, without bothering with government ownership, they hope to set up pace-makers in many industries-to sow little TVA's broadcast across the land-

PALACE QUARREL The battle which has secretly raged through the corridors of the White House between those who would plan production and those who would bust trusts, came significantly into the open last week. On Wednesday, Donald Richberg, the leading production-planner, publicly lambasted Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and his fellow trust-busters in a New York speech.

The same evening, Mr. Jackson lambasted Mr. Richberg and all production planners in a speech to a private meeting at the Boston Harvard Club. Next day, infuriated by the Richberg attack, Mr. Jackson and his friends suddenly decided to make a public answer, and the answer came in Jackson's Syracuse speech of Friday evening, which repeated in substance what Mr. Jackson said in Bo

The Life

Of an R. M. C.

Some anonymous friend has sent me a copy of the January issue of The Railway Post Office, official journal of the Railway Mail Association. A marked copy. Evidently there is a desire that mention be made here of the life and duties of one of those boys holstered gun strapped "works the mails," on mail cars of the speeding trains. Well, no one more than I appreciates the responsibilities of and efforts involved in that job.

"They are businesslike, alert men, those railway mail clerks," says the marked article, which is credited to the Kansas City Star. "Conversation is scanty in the post office on wheels, because the pressure of the work is too great, and the concentration required is too exciting to permit of idle talk. Occasionally curt questions and answers are given. The endless shuffling and tapping of the envelopes hitting their compartis almost as constant as the rush stant click-click of the rails.'

I have read since my arrival in Denmark of the administration in Georgia and of how it has reclassified intangibles which will benefit industry. The new farm act, if properly administered, will assist in bringing in more homeowners, more taxpayers, and thereby an increase in community And so, it was that riding from the port of Esbjerg, which is on the North sea and which is but little more than 30 years old and culture.

And so, it was that riding from merely domestic agriculture and our rural population is tenant and cropper, the situation obviously must be dealt with.

TENANTS, CROPPERS MOSTLY LIABILITIES Not all tenants are liabilities. Most croppers are. Most tenants are. As long as there are the great cash crops of cotton and tobacco with no other sustaining cash crops, there will be a large number of tenants. But Georgia and the south can reduce this large shifting population which produces no community life, which pays few if any taxes and which adds nothing to the life of the state.

The Danes on frams have al-ways fed themselves first—something perhaps a majority of our southern farmers haven't done too well as the government and state workers know. They feed themselves, do the Danes, and then produce a surplus which is set by quota. They have worked out their marketing by, in most instances, co-operatives. Co-operatives have grown into all phases of business in Denmark and, for that matter, in all Europe. In 1935, due to restrictions by England in 1932, the exports of the little nation amounted to about $200,000,000. The exports amounted to about 80 per cent of the total crops, live pork and all crop products. DON'T you make the mistake of thinking that this "recession" or anything else can stop your country's onward march!

Something deep-rooted and changeless in our national character is competently on guard against that.

We mean the American heritage of enterprise - our bredin-the-bone belief in more things for more people as the key to plenty-our will and skill to make things cheaper and better.

Typifying this in dramatic fashion is the new General Motors factory just dedicated in Detroit, for the mass production of new-type Diesel engines.

In this plant, GM will produce "packaged power" units, stationary and portable, for all purposes.

by promoting and capitalizing technological progress.

This is our national genius, has been our special strengthremains our reliable hope.

By this is meant the application of science to industry's problems-new things to make, better ways of making present things, lowering costs to put more things within reach of more people-thus increasing work and creating additional national wealth. Such is the sound approach to the great national problem of unemployment, and a great opportunity as well.

Increased wages, shorter hours, unless offset by increased productivity, is deflationary—it means less for all, especially those who have the least.

The automotive industry has been an outstanding exponent of the principle of capitalizing technological advances.

This has made possible a continuous advance in real wages, over the years, and at the same time a reduction in real prices, the lower priced car of today being equal in size and horsepower to the higher priced car of ten

In this process volume is stimulated, resulting over the years in more jobs at higher wages for more workers.

> General Motors, for example, invests each year tens of millions of dollars in new methods and new equipment, as the real approach toward constantly better values, better jobs and better living for all.

There may be halts, there may be setbacks, there may be temporary "recessions," but the instinct of American industry is progress.

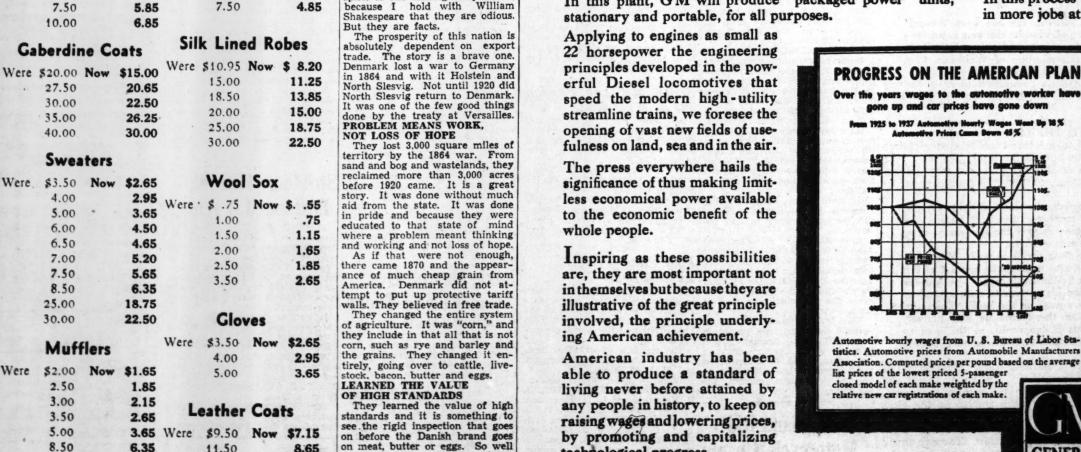

Today in a thousand research laboratories throughout the land, bubbling in retorts and fermenting in bold American brains, are the secrets and means to meet the needs and capitalize the possibilities of the future.

Here is being evolved the real surety of America's tomorrow, expressed through the fruitful formula of more and better things at lower prices for more people everywhere.

Make no mistake, the way is forward. Industry strides on!

"She Is Waitress, Hostess, Dancing Partner, Bouncer at Her Cafe"

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (By Mail)—We were having later supper at the "Hillig Olav," which is a cafe on the canal just off the harbor near the Kongens Nytory, or King's Square. It is a small cafe with not more than eight tables in it and it is much frequented by sailors. In fact, it is a sailor's cafe. The woman who conducts the cafe is a giant of a woman of about 35. She is a waitress, entertainer, hostess, dancing partner and bouncer, all in one. It is her cafe. No one else toils there except a wisp of a woman who is back in the kitchen.

It is a cafe which tourists never see and only one or two newspaper men know it. They go there because they think that Erna, the woman whose cafe it is, is one of the most magnificent women in the world, the type who used to greet the Vikings when they came

The evening I first visited there, Miss Erna picked up a French sailor and turned him across one knee and gave him a most vigorous spanking. She is about six feet tall and weighs about 190 pounds, does Miss Erna. She is not fat but is well muscled. She always seems in a great humor as she dances with the sailors or brings them their coffee or their pilsner or their schnapps. She has a laugh which shakes the roof and is very much of a character. To see her take a tough Swede or Dane, from off some freighter, by the hair of the head and eject him Pros Defeat from the Hillig Olav cafe is something to see. The two Danish newspaper men who go there just sit and admire Miss Erna. from the Hillig Olav cafe is something to see. The two Danish And, in fact, after seeing her spank the French sailor who did not wish to be spanked, I tip my hat very carefully to Miss Erna upon arrival and departure. She could beat all the women wrestlers in the world in one ring and at the same time, and probably manage to wait on eight tables at the same time.

This newspaper man, who is named Arne Jensen, had said we must go there because Miss Erna served, each Saturday night, a dish called Biksmad, or Uge-Revy. It was after we had the Uge-Revy, which was quite good that I inquired as to the nature of the dish, thinking to jot down the recipe.

"It is called," he said, "Uge-Revy, as I told you."
"Well, what does the name signify?"

"It means 'Weekly Revue." "It is a very odd name for a dish."

"Well, you see, Miss Erna calls it that because it is a mixure of all the meat dishes on the menu during the week and t is for that reason that Miss Erna has named it the Uge-Revy, 'Weekly Revue.' Do you wish to know how it is done?"

"No, I think not. I think Uge-Revy must be eaten in a cafe with sand on the floor and only eight tables and Miss Erna as the combination waitress, dancing girl, entertainer and bouncer. We will let it go."

"I have eaten it in America," said Mr. Jensen.
"Over there in your country they call it hash." He may be right. The Danes are a literal people. Hash sounds a bit more appetizing than "Weekly Revue."

HE KNEW WALTHOUR.

There was an international bike-racing championship here this week in which the world's champion sprint racer, Joe His gallant courage and the fact Sherens, of Belgium, was entered with the runner-up, Arie Van that he came through on the short Vliet, of Holland.

The sprints are the real sport of bike racing and make the long races of six and eight hours appear quite dull in comparison. The start is quite curious. They jockey for position, coming up very slowly, as in the sprints the best position is to be behind at the start and to hang there for most of the way. The first round or so of the sprint races always are quite slow but the finish is a real wallop. Van Vliet defeated the champion but that was not the real story.

There was a big man, wearing a dark suit and a black hat, who was walking around near the racing quarters on the inside of the rena.

"That," said the newspaper man with me, "is Thorwald Ellegaard. Still don't know him?" "Sorry.

"He was six times world's bike champion and used to race our fellow townsman, Bobby Walthour.

The blue of steel spokes, the flash of lights off the polished frames of the machines, the bent bodies, the pumping legs—all combine to give the illusion of even greater speed than the men achieve.

The long races have their thrills as well. When the sprints are on the teammates must make contact at the moment of replacement by the fresh man. The sprinter pumps his bike up behind his teammate and, extending his right arm, gives him a push on the back. The more daring catch the arm of the teammate and literally fling him forward. This is dangerous, as the man so sent into the sprints, must maintain his balance despite

A few even manage a sort of embrace as they ride along, side by side. It's no wonder the nation has a large supply of bike racers. ### CIO HEAD DEMANDS ROOSEVELT PLACE 3,000,000 ON WPA

Lewis Says Thousands Facing Starvation 'In Spite of President's Promise.'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 .- (AP)-John L. Lewis declared tonight that thousands of workers now face desperate need and even starvation "in spite of the President's promise" to let no willing worker

In a letter urging all affiliates of his Comittee for Industrial Organization to notify congress that "immediate action is needed" to provide 3,000,000 work relief jobs for the unamplaced. for the unemployed, Lewis added;
"The administration has taken upon itself this obligation, and the rkers of America expect it to fulfill its promise.

No more work relief jobs are available at present to meet an unemployment situation that is reaching "a very serious emergency," he said.
"Unless an immediate order is made by the administration to the WPA to open its rolls and put at least 3,000,000 people to work, there will be dire suffering in the nation. This order can be given immediately. Following that there will be needed a supplemental appropriation by congress for the rest of the fiscal year up to June 30, 1938, sufficient to cover at st 3,000,000 jobs."

Here in the midst of the Blue Ridge region of Georgia in a well-watered and fertile valley surround-ed by mountains nestles a school where young and old support themselves by farming and domestic work.
It is the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee school, an incorporated consolida-tion of the Rabun Gap Industrial school and Nacoochee Institute, where education deals with mountain conditions as an economic problem. The two groups merged in 1926 and the Presbyterian synod of Georgia promised a minimum of $20,000 a year to support the school. The Presbyterian church in Georgia and leaders in busi-ness, educational and social cirhave, since the 1926 merger, lived up to their motto "to pro-vide a chance to those who have

The directors decided to sponsor a Texas-Oklahoma mechanical conference. Cranston Williams, ecretary-manager of Chattanooga explained that a conference is now being held in these states. But that if the states desire, the conference will be made a part of the present association conference. George C. Biggers, of the Atlanta Journal, called for a plan to promote national advertising in southern newspapers.

Present at today's meeting were President Ted Dealey, Dallas News-Journal; Chairman of the Board James E. Chappell, Birmingham Age-Herald; Treasurer Walter C. MY DAY

By Eleanor

NEW YORK CITY, Friday—When I arrived in New York city today, my brother told me of his successful flight from Washington to Pittsburgh in an airliner testing out the new air track landing device installed at the Pittsburgh field. All of us, I imagine, are interested in this because it will mean safety in landing in a fog and will make flying more certain. We will not have to change our course when we hear the field we are heading for is enveloped in a ground fog, hich now causes so many delays.

With my brother on this flight, was Mr.

King, who was on the plane the other day which lost its way and finally landed in Hart-ford, Conn. He evidently is one of those coned fliers who takes whatever happens as part of the day's work and feels as I do, that to give up doing something because of what may happen, is a little too limiting to one's

I hoped to be able to go with my brother when they made this flight. I still hope that some day I shall be able to see how this new device works, for one cannot help being deeply interested in anything which has possibili-

I am still thinking about yesterday's experiences. Besides dedicating the high school, I visited a National Youth Administration project in Jackson, Ky., where the boys, were learning to make furniture out of their native woods. One boy showed me how he could turn the leg of a chair by hand.

The officials told me their problem is to give these boys the final expert training they need. I wonder if it would not be both profitable and helpful, if craftsmen throughout the country who do handwork, took boys who showed an aptitude and who had a limited training, as apprentices. They could give the boys nominal ited training, as apprentices. They could give the boys nominal pay and board and lodging until they obtained the skill necessary to develop their own work in their own home localities.

For lunch, we went to an experimental farm station, about three miles outside of Jackson, run by the University of Kentucky. Everything we had for lunch was grown on the farm. Kentucky hams cured in Breathitt county compare favorably with those which I have been buying for many years from a friend in Petersburg, Va. We learned what this station does to improve the agriculture of the county. Kentuckians like to trade, so the farm station invites the farmer from the mountains to bring in his corn and trade it ear for ear for the better seed corn which it has grown. It improves the breed of chickens by exchanging the ordinary rooster the farmer brings in for a better breed which has been developed

On the train back to Lexington, I talked with a number of young high school teachers. I was impressed with their youth, their en-thusiasm and the interest they take in their work. (Copyright. 1936, for The Constitution.)

FRIENDLY COUNSEL By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

My girl and I have had a good time together since the first night we met. Not a cross word has passed between us and although neither of us asked the other not to have outside dates we have just gradually reached the point that we don't care for any others. We have talked over everything in the most confidential manner and expect to be married in the spring. I have seen so many of my friends start out under bright stars and end up in the divorce court that I want our marriage to be different. Please give me some tips on how to stay as much in love as ANXIOUS.

Well, prospective bridegroom, that's the grandest game on earth. It will take all you have and then some; and the more you put into it the more you will have to put into it. There will be times when you will wish you hadn't enlisted. There will be times when you will call it the best day's work you ever did.

Down to practical suggestions: First of all if you and the fiancee will carry over into matrimony the attitude that you now have toward one another, you will be safe in the arms of conjugal bliss, for it is our attitude to people that says how we treat them. You two have not been critical of one fidential and haven't kept any thing from one another. Corse-

It is the first little criticism that opens the little crack between the lovers. It's the criticisms oft repeated that ultimately widen the crack into an unbridgable gulf. It's the tendency to demand this or that from one another that irritates husband with wife and wife with husband and in time causes them to set up resistance one another. It's the wife's effort to possess her husband and his bucking to be free that makes them sore and finally resentful and bitter one toward the other.

It's the first deception practiced that sows the seed of doubt which will eventually destroy the faith of a husband and wife in each other. Even little white lies passing between them are likely to cause a short circuit in the twoway switch of love and put out the light. Confidence full and free is the great safeguard for lovers before and after marriage.

Finally prospective bridegroom, if you two will just play the marriage game as you have played the engagement game you will never darken the doors your divorced friends broke the rules of the game, or they played half-heartedly, or they such poor sports that couldn't take it when points went against them. Freckles and liver spots or moth patches are deposits of excessive pigment in spots. White patches leucoderma) are spots from which the pigment is missing.

Freezing each pigmented spot by careful application of the carbon dioxide pencil (this is strictly a physician's job and no layman can safely attempt it) is probably the best way to remove freckles or "liver spots"—chloasma has nothing to do with the liver or its condition, so far as any one knows. From 100 to 150 freckles may be so treated at a seance, with little or no pain and with less risk of unpleasant reactions than attends the application of strong che in cosmetics offered as freckle removers. Of course desquamation of the spot frozen is the object, and when the skin desquamates or "peels" the deposit of pigment comes away with it. No scar follows this treatment. The use of lotions or creams or ointments for removal or for "bleaching" freckles or liver spots, is unsatisfactory and unadvisable. The remedy, whatever it may be, should not be applied to the general skin surface, but only to each individual pignanted spot individual pigmented spot.

'Sarah H. Morgan Chapter' Named | Welfare Society For All Saints Church Leader

By Sally Forth.

DITTING tribute was paid a beloved Atlanta woman whose service has Saints church named a chapter for Mrs. Thomas H. Morgan. Known heretofore as "Chapter-Number Three," it recently was renamed the "Sarah H. Morgan Chapter." in recognition of Mrs. Morgan's abiding love for her church, and that its activities, whether great or small, never fail to claim her undivided and faithful interest.

When members came to the unanimous decision to bestow this honor upon their beloved leader, Mrs. Morgan was immediately elected chairman of the newly-named chapter. Her corps of officers includes Mrs. James S. Moore, co-chairman; Mrs. George Hillyer Jr., treasurer; Miss Lillian Tidwell, recording secretary, and Mrs. James L. Gwin, corresponding secretary. corresponding secretary.

Energetic Mrs. Morgan has begun telephoning, planning, and ordering for the "pancake luncheon" on Shrove Tuesday, an important event in which she takes a prominent part, and which in future with fat—do something about it. Try the treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, dectors say, is often because a little gland is not working right. All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 34 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the among may as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets contain the mane element prescribed by most doctors in treating their fat patients. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking excretises. Bart the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know yout what you are taking. Don't wait—get a box of Marmola today from Prou force and not the control of the valley.

'The Man in the Tree'

Leaves Critic in the Air The world premiere of a new play by John Woodworth, a mem-ber of the Federal Writers' Project —namely, "The Man in the Tree"
—was presented by the Atlanta
Federal theater last night before a hand-picked, by-invitation-only

The play utilizes the time machine idea to achieve a commentary on modern affairs with indifferent success. Projected a hundred years into the future by an American Indian god, Count Albert de Pourtales awakes in modern Oklahoma, to find things, surprisingly enough, quite changed.

The balance of the action-often raggedly paced and slow—is con-sumed by the count's other-world reactions to the American scene, which he believes to be hades. Though pointed in no particular direction, the play manages to put enough pro-labor propaganda in the count's mouth to make it at least faintly Socialistic. Good in a large cast are Clyde Waddell as a cynical oil well "rigger" and Jack Benefield as the count.—H.

THE PIPER'S TUNE

By JOSEPH McCORD.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Caradad Vardell, still in pigtails when Terry Cantine, now a bond salesman, left the cow country, sells Farrabow with its rambling ranch house less than a year after her father's death. Dad, as every-body calls her, needs a change and starts for Chicago. En route she chances wiring Terry at the last address she has. Terry, tall and handsome, hardly knows the little, freckled, bespectacled but attractive girl who alights from a Pullman. A breakfast in the railroad station, he learns of John Vardell's death and the sale of Farrabow through Judge Pomphrette, his old friend. She declines a cigaret and Terry begins to worry over entertaining the visitor. He suggests the Y. W. and is surprised when she goes to the swanky Rushmore. They chat after dinner, then Terry goes to the Gold Coast pent house of Nick Tankersley, who drinks a lot, collects first editions and reads westerns. A guest there is Greta Greenway, a widow, who next day phones dad. Her conversation makes dad wonder what her interest in Terry is. Nick gives a party for dad, introducing her as Annie Oakley. Wandering into Nick's library, she meets wealthy John Severance, who is browsing among Nick's treasures. Terry leaves on a business trip. Severance takes dad to the Art Institute, proves a capable guide and critic, then takes her for a drive. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Did he? Sure enough? Then I didn't get what the hotel chap said. I'm like that."

Caradad glanced curiously at Nick, but it was too dark in the cab to see his face clearly. She couldn't understand that message about Terry-unless the clerk meant he was expected home tonight. That must be it. And she would see or hear from him in the morning. The picture proved more enjoyable than she expected, due large-ly to Nick's amusing comments. And Caradad owned a response of her own that her companion knew nothing of. The wide reaches of open country and expanse of sky, men and horses . . . it all made

In the Indian ocean, on the other hand, sailors call such winds "cyclones." The winds differ in name, but they amount to about the same thing.

An Indian Ocean Cyclone.

Our passage across the Indian ocean has been quiet and peace-ful, but many a vessel has met trouble on these waters. Some have gone down, but others have braved the storms and made their ports safely.

Sailing vessels suffer the most damage. A large modern steamer may go through a cyclone with little or no injury. The most dangerous part of a me in care of The Atlanta Concyclone is usually near its centure. ter. The "cyclone area" is a rough circle which may be 1,200 miles are strong winds and the sky is dark. It may be a summer's day, but the temperature falls almost, if not quite, to the freezing point.

At a distance of from 50 to 150 miles from the cyclone center, there is sure to be rain, heavy downpours, often of the nature of cloudbursts. The howling winds sound like thunder.

Some vessels have gone through the heart of cyclones, and those aboard have lived to tell the tale. Often it is reported that the center is "like a cauldron with waves of gigantic size." In other cases we are told that a strange calm has been found over the heart of the cyclone area.

The worst cyclones are those which move inland and strike a city. One of the mist terrible on record took place in 1876. Thousands of homes in and near Cal-cutta, India, were destroyed, and hundreds of vessels in the harbor were sunk or swept high up on the beach. The loss of life was estimateed at 100.000. TARZAN THE FEARLESS

Kagundo, the witch-doctor, folded his arms and gazed contemptuously at the emaciated captive.
"He is not fat, but he will be welcome food to the hungry Tree-God. Come, bring him to the sacred grove." Roughly the white man was dragged to the center of the village.

No. 7

Dr. Brook's mind was stupefied by fever, dazed by the puzzling events of the past hour, but now he was stirred from his lethargy by the scene that greeted his eyes—a colossal idol, weird and hideous, rising like a grim specter in a grove of giant trees.

Cope Mile Brigge Ste Servicites Inc.—The Roy U. S. Pat.

The white man did not yet realize the part this grotesque image was to play in his destined fate, but he sensed the menace of its frown, the terror of its gaping mouth. This was a thing of death, a symbol of all the evil that resided in his degraded captors.

From his lofty station Tarsan also looked down upon this awful tableau, and knew that presently the prisoner would go to a horrible doom. Cautiously he moved through the trees to make his bold attempt at rescue. If he failed—he would share the captive's fate!
